Security Removable Media Manager

secRMM Benefits- Government

The importance of agencies to implement safeguards against insider threats was brought to the forefront with the leaking of millions of documents by NSA contractor Edward Snowden. Now agencies are required to take direct action to monitor computer networks with unprecedented scrutiny.

It is imperative for government agencies to meet the standards that are outlined in Insider Threat Programs which include having the capability to gather, integrate, centrally analyze and respond to key threat related information. In addition, the Minimum Standards for Insider Threat Programs makes agencies responsible for setting up systems to monitor employee's use of classified networks.

- Simple policy rules to control file copies to removable storage devices
